Restaurant equipment price list in india

Companies use price lists for tracking the cost of goods purchased and the retail price of goods and services that are sold. A simple price list might include as little as the brand name, the specific product or service and the price. Some businesses might have only one price list for all of its products. However, a business such as a bakery that sells its goods to cafes for resale may have a different price list with wholesale pricing. There are two basic types of price lists: Cost and Sell. Cost lists are used to determine how much a product costs. Sell lists often are provided to consumers to aid in their purchase processes; in this respect a price list serves as a quote. These lists can be updated as often as necessary to record increases and decreases in costs or retail prices of products and services. Does your business require a cost list, a sell list or both? If you purchase any type of goods for manufacture or resale, your company will require a cost list. If it sells products or services, a price list will be needed. There are two types of prices on price lists: unit price and list price. A unit price is determined by the product manufacturer and most often used on a cost list. A list price is the price that the product is sold for. Some manufacturers recommend a list price for all distributors, called the MSRP (manufacturer's suggested retail price). However, as the name suggests, these are suggested prices. A company may choose to sell the item for less if it is on sale or on a permanent discount in order to remain competitive. They also may choose to sell the product for more than MSRP. Whichever price a business decides to sell its product at will be the list price. Utilize the software of your choice to create a data table for your price list. This table should have as many columns as there are important data points. For example, if your price lists includes Brand Name, Product Name, Retail Price, and Bulk Price, it should have four columns. Create as many rows as you have products. Label each column with the title of the data required within it. Under the headings Brand Name and Product Name, list each and every one of the products you plan to buy or sell. For a cost list, include the purchase price of the goods in the appropriate column. For sell lists include the price for which you will sell the product. It is worth noting whether or not a product is taxable. Tips Be specific with your products. Brands often have a wide variety of similar products, and specificity will add clarity to your price list. Because prices change over time, it is very important to date every price list you create. Presenting a company product list, especially in business-to-business industries, can be the first step in closing a sale with a new customer. Make sure the list is easy to read, highlights information important to your customers and is well organized. Organize the list by types of products, then alphabetically. You can create your list in a word program if you do not have a spreadsheet program. However, a spreadsheet offers many helpful tools that make it a better choice for a list. You can use spreadsheet tools to find duplicates and sort the list to make it ideal for customer viewing. Open a spreadsheet program like Microsoft Excel, OpenOffice Calc or Google Docs Spreadsheet. Click the "Insert" tab and then click the "Header" icon in the "Header & Footer" section of the "Insert" tab to insert a header in Microsoft Excel. In OpenOffice Calc, click "Format" in the top menu and select "Page" to open the "Page Style" dialog box. Click the "Header" tab, then click the "Edit" button to enter your header information. Google Docs Spreadsheet no longer offers a header, so you can enter the header information at the top of the spreadsheet. Style the information according to your preferences. As an alternative to entering the header, print the price list on company letterhead, but be sure to include any necessary information not printed on the letterhead. Items to include in the header for the product list are the company logo, name, address, telephone, fax, website and email address. Include clear instructions on whom to contact to make a purchase. Enter your labels for the data you will include in your price list in the top row after the header. Consider the information your customer will need to buy your products when you create these headers. Recommended headers include "Product ID," "Product Name," "Product Description," "Product Dept.," and "Price." Also, include columns for information a customer may want to know before making a purchase. For example, if you are selling stoves, people will want to know at a glance if the stove is gas or electric, so include a column for distinctions of that nature. Fill in your product information. India is a culinary paradise for foodies, with diverse cuisine that changes from state to state (yes, there's so much more to Indian cuisine than ubiquitous butter chicken!). The country also has some of the top restaurants in the world according to prestigious lists. Read on to find out which ones they are. Asia's 50 Best Restaurants list is an offshoot of the definitive World's 50 Best Restaurants list published by William Reed Business Media. These lists aim to showcase leading trends and highlight outstanding restaurants. They're based on the opinions and experiences of restaurant industry experts who participate in a voting process independently adjudicated by Deloitte. The 2021 Asia's 50 Best Restaurants list was compiled with the input of more than 300 industry experts across the continent. Each region has its own panel of members made up food writers and critics, chefs, restaurateurs, and highly regarded "foodies". In 2021, voters each nominated seven restaurants, including up to five from their home country. As is to be expected, widely-acclaimed Indian Accent appears on the list for the seventh year in a row, this year in 18th place. It retains its title of Best Restaurant in India too. Indian Accent has won the hearts of many gastronomes, including Indian food critic Vir Sanghvi who labeled it as the "cuisine phenomenon of the decade". The restaurant is headed by widely respected chef Manish Mehrotra and its inventive cuisine is classed as contemporary modern Indian. Previously situated in Delhi's Friends Colony, Indian Accent relocated to its glamorous new home at The Lodhi hotel in Delhi in late 2017. (It also has branches in New York and London). New entrant on the list this year is Mumbai's Masque, in 32nd place. This is an outstanding achievement for the restaurant, which opened in 2016 and features a tasting menu-only concept. Chef Prateek Sachu uses seasonal and indigenous Indian ingredients in his transformation of traditional recipes into modern dishes. His menu is inspired by his childhood memories in the Himalaya region (he's from Jammu), as well as regional Indian recipes. Notably, the restaurant opened its Masque Lab in 2020, where new ingredients and cooking techniques are investigated and tried. The restaurant's location, inside one of Mumbai's former cotton mills, also adds to the atmosphere. Bukhara, at the ITC Maurya Sheraton hotel in Delhi again dropped off the list, after making a return in 2020. Read More: Two restaurants in India made it onto Mode Media's 2016 list of the Foodie Top 100 Restaurants of the World. Unfortunately, Mode went bust not long after, so there isn't a more recent edition of the list. The Foodie Top 100 list aimed to provide an alternative to Michelin's restaurant ratings -- one that was authoritative, and not trendy or controversial. The restaurants on the list were nominated and selected by a panel of heavyweight food critics from around the world. Indian Accent was one of the restaurants including on the list. The other one was Bukhara. No surprises there, really! Bukhara is the world's most famous Indian restaurant. It's renowned for its rustic atmosphere, open-fronted kitchen, and delectable Northwest Frontier tandoori cuisine. The likes of US presidents Bill Clinton and Barack Obama have dined there. Karavalli, at the Taj Gateway Hotel in Bangalore, dropped off the list in 2016. This was very disappointing. It's a hugely influential seafood restaurant, and one of Bangalore's iconic restaurants, that's finally getting global recognition. The specialty is coastal Indian cuisine served on banana leaf. However, the fact that two Indian restaurants appeared on the list was quite an achievement. Nearly 70% of the list was made up of restaurants from Japan, France, and the US. (For the record, Australia only had one restaurant on the list, as did Singapore, Thailand, the Netherlands, Denmark, and Sweden). In addition to the global list of the world's 100 best restaurants, Mode also compiled a regional list of the best restaurants in each country. The Indian restaurants included on this list were: Notably, many of these top restaurants belong to the Taj hotel group. Thanks for letting us know!
